The Hotel and Restaurant Association of Western India (HRAWI), in association with the Food Safety and Standards Authority of India (FSSAI), conducted two more Food Safety Supervisory training in Advance Catering (FoSTaC) programmes in Navi Mumbai and Pune recently. These sessions were conducted at The E-square Hotel, Pune, and the D Y Patil University School of Hospitality and Tourism Studies, Navi Mumbai. A total of 72 hospitality professionals were trained and certified under the programme over the two-day period.

“We have been conducting the programme for over two years, and our association has trained and certified 1,470 hospitality professionals so far. FoSTaC is an initiative of FSSAI for reinforcing the safety and hygiene standards among the food handlers in hospitality. We plan on continuing to host these programmes, so that the maximum number of hospitality professionals can benefit from it,” stated Gurbaxish Singh Kohli, president, HRAWI.

The association also conducted two training programmes in Navi Mumbai prior to the sessions mentioned above. These were held over two consecutive days under the supervision of FSSAI official Praveen Andrews at D Y Patil University School of Hospitality and Tourism Studies and Four Points by Sheraton.
